

HER CHECKERED LIFE.

The Strange Story Brought Out By the Murder of a Washington Policeman.

Married to a Widow Whose Daughter Did Not Know His Relation to Her.

How Rube Burrow, the Noted South Dakota desperado, looks—Heating Jesse James' Record.

The death of Policeman Crippen, who was shot by a drunken negro last Tuesday night, brings to light an old romance surrounding the lives of his widow and step-daughter, says a Washington dispatch. The raising of a fund for the widow was begun, but received a serious set-back when it was discovered that for some time the wife had been employed in the war department under the name of Denig. Investigation developed the fact that she had received but $20 month from the government and was in straitened circumstances.

Then comes the story of her life which has been sadly checkered. Her maiden name was Smith, and she used to be well known and much admired in Washington, where she spent her youth.

Over a score of years ago she married Judge Crane, of Baltimore, and the pretty girl, who is lying ill of excitement in her home on Tenth street to-day, and a younger brother were the fruits of the marriage. The girl was named Lulu, and much care was taken with her education. She lived some time in Boston, and grew to be a beautiful, black-eyed, brown-haired girl, with a full appreciation of her mother's excellent social position.

Judge Crane died years ago and his widow married Col. Denig, well known in Baltimore and to a somewhat less extent in this city. He was at one time stationed in San Francisco. Mrs. Denig moved in the best society, but at her husband's death, some years ago, she was left in poor circumstances. She came to this city, and the little her husband left her soon dwindled away and when she married Crippen there was not a great deal left.

She stipulated that their marriage be kept from her daughter's knowledge, and so well was this done that Lulu never knew of it until her stepfather's death on Tuesday last. After failing in business Crippen got a place on the police. Meanwhile Mrs. Crippen's daughter came to visit her, and as the mother was anxious she should not know of her marriage to Crippen, she induced him to change his boarding place, he going to live with a friend who is on the police force.

He visited his wife in the guise of an unemployed suitor, and Miss Lulu, though she rather liked him, insisted his social position was not good enough to allow her mother to think of being married to him. So the farce was kept up for many months, Crippen and his wife sometimes going out evenings together, and he calling upon her at the boarding house. The warm-hearted policeman of the district will go deep down in their pockets to help the widow, and it is likely the proud young lady who disdained her mother's husband because he was "on the force" will be obliged to accept the bounty of the knights of the locust.

A Southern Desperado.

Rube Burrow is the most reckless and daring outlaw and train robber this country has ever produced. He is also the most expert long range rifle shot in the world, says the Atlanta Constitution.

His record of lawlessness has not been equaled by the noted Jesse James or the daring Redmond.

In the past two years he has helped up and robbed nine trains in different parts of the country, killed four men outright, wounded a half dozen more and whipped 100 armed men in an open fight. His marksmanship is almost perfect. In fact, he has seldom fired at a man at a range of 500 yards or less without the bullet going true to the mark.

There is a marked difference between Burrow and all other train robbers. In that he generally does his work with one confederate, and has never been known to have with him more than two. His present pal is an equally daring and reckless fellow, named Joe Jackson. Jackson was with him when he held up a train on the Mobile and Ohio road at Buckhannon, on the 25th of September, and was the man with him last week in Blount county, Alabama, when he whipped out the sheriff and his posse of fifty men, killing two of them outright and wounding three others.

Rube Burrow is a splendid specimen of physical manhood. He is just 34 years of age, and stands 6 feet 1 inch in his stocking feet, weighing 175 pounds. His shoulders are very broad and square, and his arms long and muscular. He is as active as a cat, and has been noted as a runner since his boyhood days, it being said that he was never beaten in a foot race or thrown in a wrestling match. His face, even, has a muscular appearance. It is rather long, with high cheek bones and prominent lower jaw protruding noticeably backwards under his ears. His complexion is inclined to be light, his hair a sandy color, rather stiff, and his mustache long and drooping. His eyes are, however, the main feature of his appearance. They are greyish blue in color, set well back, and are very piercing, giving him a dare-devil, reckless appearance.

As he appeared in Blount county the other day he was dressed in a dark coat, heavy knee pants and wore a broad sombrero or cowboy hat. Running down from over his shoulders and around his waist was a leather cartridge belt; on each side, rather in front of his hips was a Colt's 45-caliber revolver; in front, stuck through the belt, was a large bowie knife, and in his hand he carried a 16-shooting 45-caliber Winchester rifle.

His pal, Joe Jackson, alias Henry Davis, who was with him, is very much smaller in stature, with dark hair and dark complexion, but dressed and armed similar.

Be Sure

If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to buy any other. A Boston lady, whose exchange is worthy imitation, tells her experience below:

"In one store where I went to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla the clerk tried to induce me to buy their own instead of Hood's; he told me that his would last longer; that I might take it on my

's trial; that if I did not like it I need not say anything, etc. But he could not prevail on me to change. I told him I had taken Hood's Sarsaparilla, knew what it was, was satisfied with it, and did not want any other. When I began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla was feeling real miserable with dyspepsia, and so weak that at times I could hardly
